

In their own words.

People who have already become PCMs are reaping rewards.

"The NSCM Certification System was an immersion into career management theory and practice. The information we obtained and the lessons learned are enabling us to implement a career management program in our organization."

Charles Williams, PHR, PCM
Organizational Development, Government

"The National Society of Career Management offers the most comprehensive career management methodology in existence today. The course covers concept and theory and also instructing on the execution; the "how to" that is so often missing in high-level curriculum. I walked away from this course having a complete framework to take clients through on their journey to the next career, from "I don't know what I want to be when I grow up," to "Thank you for helping me achieve the career that I want to jump out of bed for everyday." Once I earned my PCM credential, I had immediate credibility with potential clients and was able to steadily grow my private practice, often receiving invitations to present to groups as well as create customized workshops based around the NSCM methodology. I would highly recommend the CMCS to someone who is considering a position in HR and Career Coaching or Counseling."

Wendy Nolin, PCM

"The NSCM Certification System is a surefire method of taking the job seeker in transition and positioning them for a new career, a new job and a new life. Detailed research methods, client exercises and evaluative techniques help the practitioner zero in on exactly what the client wants."

Donna Woodard, PCM

"The NSCM PCM Training is wonderful. All industries or occupations that offer job placement or career assistance services should take this training. This is the most comprehensive body-of-knowledge I've found in the market on career management. If you are in a role that provides career or job services to people, the PCM training program offers a you a "Win-Win" outcome for you and your client by giving you a method of conducting business and tools that serve for a lifetime. How can you beat that!"

"I found the NSCM course inspirational from both a manager perspective in helping my team achieve their career goals, as well as an excellent training program to start my own career as a career coach."

Monica Carson, CPA, PCM

"NSCM created a robust system for producing tangible results with people wanting career management and career transition support. The course engages on all levels as you hear the material, see it work, and then learn fully by solving real problems. When you complete the course, you have an excellent foundation of theory and practical skills and knowledge to propel your career in exciting directions and assist you in facilitating others in their career outcomes."

Gail Hurt, PCM
Career Coach, Private Practice

"After attending many certification courses (SPHR, Life Coaching, etc.), I must say the PCM course was one of the most organized and thorough body of knowledge in career development I have seen. The process made sense and built on our knowledge through lectures and experiential learning, the materials were outstanding for both the practitioner and the client. If helping people with their work is your passion, you would do yourself a huge favor by attending NSCM's certification course. When you're certified through this program, you can be confident in your competence."

Corliss McGinty, PHR, PCM

"I would recommend the PCM Program to any professional looking for a comprehensive career management model. The intuitively ordered presentation, materials, and exercises introduce the model, develop the required coaching skills, and provide supportive tools. Those graduating know they can start coaching people from day one."

Thomas Hogan, PCM, PHR

"This is the second career coach training class that I've taken and it should have been the only one. It is the most comprehensive training program in the industry. I've been able to increase the number of clients I see annually and increase my revenue significantly while doing something that brings me great satisfaction."

Candice McNeil, PCM

The course on Career Management re-energized me in terms of what can be done to help people understand what they can and need to do to achieve a career plan. I am confident that the process works for clients as I have already helped people to move forward with a career plan.”

“I obtained a Master of Education degree in May 2008 from The University of Texas at Austin with a focus on Counseling - specifically Career Counseling. I completed two internships in Career Counseling as part of my Master’s degree. However, even with the advanced degree, I felt as though I needed some additional education in certain areas. My degree taught me the fundamentals of counseling - which directly applies to a career counseling or career coaching profession. However, I felt as though I needed some additional direction on the action planning and implementation stages of career coaching. Oftentimes career counseling will focus on the counseling conversations with the client and not focus as heavily on the action steps or implementation of the career plan. As a career coach, I wanted to focus on both the counseling and the action steps/implementation to help clients. Without this designation, I don’t believe I would have started my own career coaching practice. I would not have had the information necessary in the career coaching field to successfully start my own practice. When people ask my qualifications, I believe it is a selling point to them to know I have both a Master’s degree combined with the PCM designation.”
